INTRODUCTION

PEAK Vademecum:

- compiles in a single document the qualifying contents of the project in order to share and finalize them with the hosting partners;
- facilitates the detailed planning of the mobility activities;
- meets the need for documenting the activities;

This Vademecum is offered both in Italian and English.

PROJECT SUMMARY: PRINCIPLES, OBJECTIVES, ACTIVITIES

The PEAK - Promoting European Awareness and Key competences - project is intended to strengthen the quality of the professional development of teachers involved and to share a reflection on the experimental practices and experience, aimed at creating a community of speech and practices.

The purposes of the project are oriented to promote the development and assessment of teachers' key competences in the field of multilingualism and ICT based methodology of teaching & learning. These skills are in the current context the symbol of the difference to feel fully European citizen and to participate in decision making and cultural life of the continent.

In this logic Peak project is a space where different social actors interact, aiming the conscious development of European citizenship of individuals.

It is necessary to encourage and sharing the development of good teaching practices that allow:

- the reduction of the digital divide between European students, as evidenced by both the OECD report of 2013, and the program "Opening Up";
- teachers' awareness about the potential of ICT in relations of the richness and diversity of cultural and educational access to information and social cohesion of their students;
- students' training for practical and critical use of digital technologies and the network;

PEAK Vademecum has been worked out by the ANFIS Project Team.

Activity Code: 2015-1-IT02-KA201-015149

- students training to democratic practices for direct participation in the social life of the country and the institutions within the European Union.

The mobilities are intended to implement the quality of teaching methodological and , communicative skills, and the exchange of experience mainly in the following fields:

- the skills in using information and communications technology (ICT) for education, as programmed by the European Commission through the Action Plan Opening up, in order to encourage innovation and digital skills in schools;
- promoting empowerment, participation and active citizenship, in order to develop among young people a feeling of European identity, based on common values, history and culture.

PROJECT ACTIONS

The activities proposed by PEAK are the following ones:
for the Partners:

- project meetings in presence and at distance for all the participants to share the feasibility, planning, monitoring and evaluation of this learning pathway;
- shared analysis of Erasmus Plus planning in all its phases;
- arrangement of learning units and intellectual output;

for the Participants:

- mobility, in placement and exchange, in training situations, in schools and / or universities, aimed at the development of the teaching profession as a strong point for the improvement of education systems in the areas specified.

The application of best practices is based on personalized approaches to collaborative learning and critical thinking, to the strategic use of information and communications technology (ICT), and REA [Open Educational Resources] (OER-Open Educational Resources), flexible training, virtual mobility and other innovative learning methodologies, centred on scaffolding, tutoring and flipped classroom;

also included:

- monitoring and ongoing and final evaluation of the learning experience and of the Learning Outcome, always related to the selected aims and objectives;
- remote and in-presence meetings, essays on magazines and newspapers, multimedia tools (web sites, video-conferencing, chat, forum, social media) to promote discussion and dissemination of the results and benefits of the experience, sharing and transfer of good practices;
- visits to educational institutions and university of the hosting partner and in Italy, during which sharing experience and collaborations with partners and stakeholders through the co-construction of Intellectual Output and dissemination of multiplier events effects expected from the project;

In the pre-mobility phase we will care to:

- achieve a common base of language skills input; if necessary, it will carry out a specific preparation in the target language;
- participants training on the use of ICT in professional exchange and sharing of materials;
- training on mobility learning objectives.

Training initiatives will be carried out on a Moodle platform and using Web 2.0 tools.

PEAK Vademecum has been worked out by the ANFIS Project Team.

ANNEX 5 - LEARNING UNITS

Identification of the / learning units

The content of the mobility must be expressed in terms of units of LO related to a qualification. Each unit must contain:

- title of the unit
- results contained in the unit
- description of the methods applied
- procedures and evaluation criteria

Learning units will be created specifically for the mobility experience and subsequent spread.

The planning of the schemes and the creation of the lines of the design according to the unit of learning will be carried out online on Moodle by project staff and with possible involvement of employees / partners ad hoc on specific actions to be sent.

ANNEX 6 - PARTICIPANTS PRE-MOBILITY TRAINING

They are preliminary activities for the performance of on-site activities and aimed at optimizing the relatively limited time available during the mobility.

The actions of the PEAK project provide a preparation phase preceding the mobility experience with the purpose of supporting the training experience abroad with:

1. the development of short training modules on language skills, organizational and relational abilities;
2. the organization of training modules aimed at the acquisition of simple web 2.0 tools to enable methods of sharing and collaboration;
3. the management of interventions aiming at the orientation and the reinforcement of the reasons behind the decision to undertake the mobility experience abroad;
4. the preparation and distribution of information materials (especially "country profiles" in which are highlighted and summarized, along with some basic laws and regulations, including customs, traditions and other information of a cultural nature). ANNEX 7 - DISSEMINATION

All the representatives of the partners participating in the project are in charge with dissemination:

As an example we recalls some mode of dissemination as may be provided:

- organization of workshops, during and after the mobility, with stakeholders;
- producing documents and tools for testing and evaluating the unit learning from experience;
- seminars and workgroups for sharing tested activities.

The dissemination will take place, provided by the participants, in the structures of belonging, through:

- training initiatives in the professional context (target: school personnel, other persons)
- experimentation in the classroom with students and colleagues.

ANNEX 8 - EVALUATION

1. MOBILITY EVALUATION:

During the mobility

The participants:

- fill grids and questionnaires especially planned
- prepare a log book where they will record, in English, the most significant moments of their journey.

After the mobility

- Exchange benchmarks evaluation :
 - participants' level of satisfaction of the experience of the transnational mobility;
 - coherence of training content in relation to the objectives of the exchange
 - self-assessment on the acquisition of new skills and / or knowledge
 - strengthens points;
 - presence of critical issues;
- Validation of "credits" granted abroad;
- Registration of credits recognized in the participant's personal booklet.

2. PROJECT EVALUATION

BENCHMARKS:

1. interest generated in the target audience;
2. respect and coherence of the program, of the working time and project goals;
3. modes and procedure of communication between the partners involved in the network partnership.
4. effectiveness of the network of partners in other educational contexts.

TOOLS

- Questionnaire filled out by the participants;
- Hosting partner's Final report;
- Participant's evaluation grid;

At the end of the project, based on the information collected, we will proceed to the evaluation of all processes and products and their consistency with the objectives set by reporting strengths and weaknesses.

Portfolio: collection of documents and most significant experiences emerged during the project by the individual partners

ANNEX 9 - CERTIFICATION

For what concerns the procedures for certified assessing, PEAK follows the guiding principles of Europass, the official instrument of the European community in the validation and accreditation of mobility experiences. Within the macro-phase of the mobility experience is included the validation of the same, namely the recognition of the performed activities.

Certifying the experience of mobility gives it a particular value as it fulfils the need for transparency and accreditation.

The instruments of recognition and certification are:

- certificate of attendance arranged by the sending partner and delivered by the host partner with the data that situate the experience and the main activities carried out and know-how acquired:
 - name of the hosting partner;
 - effective period of the mobility;
 - expected professional contents;
 - educational and professional goals achieved;
- participation certificate delivered by the sending partners for internal credit in local and national level;
- Europass certification for the recognition of expected outcomes in the various learning units foreseen in mobility.
